

If a handler only handles previously packaged product and does not repackage the product, do they have to be certified?

No. Handlers who only handle product that remain in the same package are excluded entities and not required to become certified. They must comply with requirements to prevent commingling and contact with prohibited substances under the NOP regulations with respect to any organically produced products, however.

e-CFR