Suspended Organic Operations

All organic operations certified to the USDA organic standards are required to comply with all National Organic Program regulations (7 CFR Part 205). If a non-compliance is identified, the operation is notified in writing. If an operation fails to correct the non-compliance or otherwise resolve it, the operation's organic certification may be suspended or revoked. The distinction between suspension and revocation depends on the severity of the non-compliance. A suspended operation may not sell or represent their product as USDA organic until it is reinstated in writing by the National Organic Program. A revoked operation or a person responsible for a revoked operation may not obtain certification for a period of five years.

This document lists suspended operations first; revoked operations may be found at the end of the document. Operations are sorted alphabetically by the country and state in which they are located, and then the operator or business name.
