The Shell Egg Demand Indicator for this week is 33.00, up 4.2 points from last week.

This Week:
Demand for shell eggs rises over the past week but the pace has slowed considerably as consumer demand has begun to gradually return to more sustainable levels. Wholesale prices are about unchanged but weakness is starting to creep in as supplies are slowly increasing despite limited offerings. Trading has slowed to a moderate to active pace. Breaking stock prices are lower on limited interest. Supplies are moderate to heavy and on the increase even has offerings have risen to moderate levels. Trading is slow. The preliminary survey of retail outlets indicates a full stop on sales activity for conventional shell eggs as retailers are only interested in maintaining a consistent but limited supply in the dairy case.
