The Shell Egg Demand Indicator for this week is - 8.50, up 2.4 points from last week.

This Week:
Shell egg demand improves slightly as the market moves into the summer doldrums. Wholesale prices of cartoned eggs have steadied and loose egg prices are showing weakness. Market prices that have been supported by reduced supplies are now under pressure as product availability rises. Interest is no better than moderate as needs are filled and trading has slowed. Breaking stock prices are weak but holding on increased offerings. Supplies are moderate and sufficient to maintain full schedules. Trading is slow moderate. The preliminary survey of retail outlets indicates a slight increase in the level of feature activity coming off of the holiday weekend and the average ad price is down this week as it continues its weekly rise and fall.
