Who Needs To Be Certified?

Most farms and businesses that grow, handle, or process organic products must be certified, including:

- Farms that sell more than $5,000 in organic products per year (gross sales).
- Handlers that sell more than $5,000 of organic processed food, including handlers that place bulk products into smaller packages or that repackage/relabel products.
- Processors that sell more than $5,000 of organic processed products, unless all products contain less than 70 percent organic ingredients or only identify the organic ingredients in the ingredient statement.
- Vendors that handle (e.g. package) and sell products online (but not in stores) or otherwise deliver organic products.

Overall, if you make a product and want to claim that it or its ingredients are organic, your final product probably also needs to be certified. Please review the examples and exemptions below.

Who Doesn’t Need to Be Certified?

The following operations do not need to be certified:

- Small organic farms and businesses (gross agricultural income from organic sales does not exceed $5,000 per year)
- Some brokers, distributors, and traders (see below)
- Retail food establishments.
- Exempt handling operations (see below).

Although certification is not required for these “exempt” or “excluded” operations, they may pursue voluntary organic certification. Exempt and excluded operations still need to comply with specific sections of the USDA organic regulations (please see other side).
Do I Need to Be Certified Organic? (continued)

Small Organic Farms and Businesses

If your farm or business’ gross agricultural income from organic sales is $5,000 or less per year, it is considered an “exempt” operation. This means you don’t need to be certified to sell, label, or represent your products as organic. You also do not need to develop a written organic system plan. However, you must follow all other requirements in the USDA organic regulations. Specifically, you must:

- Maintain records for at least three years.
- Not use the USDA organic seal on your products or refer to them as certified organic. If you would like to use the USDA organic seal, pursue organic certification.
- Meet other USDA organic labeling requirements.
- Not sell your products as ingredients for use in someone else's certified organic product.
- Register with the California Department of Food and Agriculture if your farm is in California.

Retail Food Establishments

If your operation is a retail food establishment, such as a grocery store, it does not need to be certified. You may sell certified organic products that bear the USDA organic seal, as long as you don’t process* them.

If your retail food establishment processes* certified organic products on its premises, the USDA organic regulations state that you must:

- Prevent commingling with non-organic products and contact with prohibited substances.
- Not use the USDA organic seal or refer to processed products as certified organic. If you would like to use the USDA organic seal, obtain organic certification.
- Meet other USDA organic labeling requirements.

Brokers, Distributors, and Traders Who Handle Products in Closed Containers

If your operation only sells, transports, stores, receives, or acquires products that are received in and remain in a container without being processed*, the operation does not need to be certified. An example of such an “excluded” operation would be one that handles boxed organic cereal. However, you must prevent commingling with non-organic products and contact with prohibited substances.

If your operation handles bulk, unpackaged organic products (such as cattle, milk, or grain), you need to be certified or be included under an organic producer or handler’s organic system plan.

Exempt Handling Operations

If your handling operation:

- Only handles products that contain less than 70 percent organic ingredients (excluding salt and water) or
- Only identifies organic ingredients on the product’s information panel,

It does not need to be certified. However, the USDA organic regulations state that you must:

- Prevent commingling with non-organic products and contact with prohibited substances.
- Meet the USDA organic labeling requirements.
- Maintain records for at least three years that prove that the quantity of organic products sold were organically produced and handled.
