

Sept. 25, 2006

Dear Sirs:

I don't have any answers as to a fair way to price milk, but I am asking you to come up with a plan that would take into consideration the cost of producing milk.

Any other business would pass the cost on to the consumer, but dairy farmers have to make due with what they get.

Are the processors and coops losing money? I doubt it.

What would happen if dairy farmers go out of business and the United States would have to depend on foreign countries? Look at oil. Besides, with food you would have to be afraid of tampering.

Please do something to help the dairy farmer!

Very sincerely,
Esther L. Lambert